Dear Mr. Newman:

I read with interest your article in the December issue of Numismatic on Continental Currency. I have in my possession framed Continental Currency which was bought by my great-uncle in 1890 for $50.00. I am mailing you a photostat of the framed currency and would appreciate your advising me if you have any interest.

Sincerely,

T. C. Haydock, Jr.

Dear Mr. Haydock:

You were very nice to write me after reading my article in The Numismatist.

The frame of notes which you have acquired from your uncle seems to have four or five items which would be improvements to our collection.

Since you probably do not want to break up the items in the frame, I believe we could buy the item as a whole and dispose of those we did not need. Many, as you will note, are torn and quite dirty.

If you do wish to offer them for sale, please let me know what price you have in mind and I will advise you whether we are interested.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Newman:

Thank you very much for your letter of January 24, 1967 in response to my inquiry about the Continental Currency. You asked me to let you know at what price I was willing to sell; perhaps I didn't make myself clear in my first letter. I am not a money collector and have no more idea than the man in the moon what they are worth. I have written several letters in regard to them and probably will sell to the highest bidder.

Sincerely,

T. C. Haydock, Jr.
